9:00am to 4:00pm

NCD and online via Zoom

Facilitated by Queensland University of Technology

Australia Awards PNG with Queensland University of Technology will be delivering a workshop for alumni who are interested to know how to build better health plans.

The two-day course aims to equip current and future health system leaders with the knowledge and skills required to devise and implement responsive health plans that promote greater equity, efficiency and effectiveness across the health system.

This workshop will build knowledge, skills and confidence in:

- understanding planning theory and its importance in the health sector
- unpacking the planning context
- forecasting & conducting needs assessments
- engaging stakeholders in planning
- defining goals, priorities and interventions, and
- implementing plans successfully.

The course is limited to 35 participants. Persons with disability, those working in the Disability and Inclusion field, women and those living in remote locations are strongly encouraged to apply.

To express your interest, please contact us at alumni@australiaawardspng.org for an expression of interest form.

Send us your completed form and CV by 5pm Friday 12 May 2023.
